

CHINESE KILLED IN LAUNDRY

NO CONNECTION WITH SIGEL CASE, POLICE SAY.

Ung Yow Choked to Death and Thrown Into Tubs in His Stanton Street Laundry—Place Robbed—Neighbors Say He Had White Girl Friends.

A Chinaman was murdered early yesterday morning in his basement laundry at 124 Stanton street. It is not known whether white men or Chinamen killed him. It appears to be clear from evidence found that two men had a hand in it.

The Chinaman was Ung Yow. He had been five years in this country and had worked with his brother, Ung Fong, at 208 East Houston street for a couple of years past. He bought the Stanton street laundry from Tom Lee (not Mayor Tom Lee of Chinatown) a fortnight ago and started business there for himself. This is the story the police gather from his brother and other Chinese.

The janitress of the building at 124 Stanton street is Mrs. Rose Rabinowitz, and her three-year-old daughter Sadie quickly made friends with the Chinese laundryman. Sadie used to go every day to the laundry window from the court in the rear, and Ung Yow each time gave her candy or lichen nuts. Sadie got to like the Chinese gifts.

Yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock Sadie walked straight to the laundry window when she got up. Not finding the laundryman she called her mother, who went to the window and was frightened and horrified to see Ung Yow doubled over two washtubs with his head under water in one of them. She sent for a policeman, who broke in the door. In a few minutes there were men at hand from the homicide bureau at Headquarters and from the Eldridge street station.

Ung Yow's body was in the rear room of the basement. The police found that he had been attacked in the front room with some sort of weapon which cut his head on one side. The wound bled profusely, as the tracks on the floor and walls and bloody finger prints on his body showed. He had then been dragged through the centre room and to the rear room, where he was thrown into the two tubs. In the struggle a woman named had been bound tight around his neck. The coroner's physician said that Ung had died of strangulation, which would make it appear that his murderers threw him into the tub to make doubly sure, doubtless holding his head under water for some time.

Everything of value except the clothing had been taken from the place. Ung Fong said that he did not think his brother had much money, having only recently bought the laundry. The till had been pulled out from the wall, the drawer being left on a nearby table. Everything had been ransacked, even the Chinaman's bed.

The police incline to the theory that it was not Chinese, but strong arm men of the district who did the murder and that robbery was the motive. So far as could be learned there was no reason to suspect that this murder had anything to do with the Sigel case.

Ung Yow, according to neighbors, was visited on Wednesday evening by a white woman, a young blonde in company with a man, some said—some said alone. One girl said that when she took laundry to the shop she saw white girls there almost every time. Ung Yow's brother said that Yow was not friendly with white girls and that he was not a member of any of the Chinese societies. Fong said that he knew of no friends of his brother.

The police got the names of two witnesses who said that they saw Yow in his laundry at 11 o'clock on Wednesday evening last night. These were Joseph Weiner and Adolph Waxenbaum of the same address as the laundry. Fong said that he saw his brother at midnight of Wednesday. Rose Farber of 138 East street and Sarah Scherer of 123 Stanton street were witnesses who said that they saw the blonde visitor to the basement laundry.

The police figure that a Chinaman would scarcely have adopted the method that was used of despatching Ung Yow. No further progress was made toward the solution of the mystery. Indeed the police were in more or less of a personal quandary yesterday afternoon and gave some attention to attempting to solve the problem of where they were at once more after the Mayor's ousting of Bingham.

PROBE R. R. COMMISSIONER.

Georgia Legislature After Man Gov. Hoke Smith Dismissed.

ATLANTA, July 1.—The Georgia Legislature to-day decided to appoint a joint committee to investigate the suspension of Railroad Commissioner McLendon by Hoke Smith just before the latter retired from the office of Governor, and also ordered an investigation of the charge that McLendon, while head of the Railroad Commission, had acted as agent for railroads in the sale of their bonds.

This latter charge was not touched upon by Gov. Smith when he suspended McLendon, but has been developed since.

In a statement given out to-day, McLendon admits that he acted as agent for certain railroads. He says he placed $100,000 bonds in New York for the Electric Street Railway of Athens and tried to dispose of $200,000 worth of bonds for the Wrightsville and Tennille Railroad. This road is controlled by the Central of Georgia Railway, owned by E. H. Harriman.

McLendon says he acted in the bond transaction in an effort to bring capital into the State as it was charged that the Railroad Commission, of which he was chairman, was frightening away capitalists.

It also developed to-day that McLendon made written inquiry of Attorney-General Harlan as to the propriety of engaging in those bond deals and that the Attorney-General made a written reply that the law specifically forbade a railroad commissioner to engage in such transactions.

AFTER BURRAGE AND LAWSON.

Losers in Armes Syndicate Appeal to Boston Court.

BOSTON, July 1.—Henry Runkel of New York and others who claim to have lost about $500,000 through the Armes Copper Mines Syndicate, to-day, through counsel, appeared before Judge Wait in support of a motion to have their case against A. C. Burrage submitted to an auditor to hear additional evidence with a view of showing that the relations of Assistant Dickie and Burrage were such as to render Burrage liable to the subscribers of the Armes syndicate. Counsel also seeks opportunity to connect Thomas W. Lawson with the matter as a defendant.

This is the case in which the Supreme Judicial Court recently held that the plaintiffs could not maintain their bill against Burrage, the plaintiffs seeking to hold him liable as one of the prime movers in the Armes syndicate for their losses in the same.

CONEY ISLAND REJOICES.

Takes It That Point Gained by Fred Thompson Ends Sunday Troubles.

Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday handed down a decision continuing the temporary injunction obtained by Frederic Thompson restraining Mayor McClellan and the police authorities from interfering with the amusements in Luna Park, Coney Island, on Sundays, pending the trial of the six day license issue involved. Mr. Thompson got the temporary injunction about a week ago, after the Mayor had decided to limit licenses for "common shows" to six days. Justice Kelly says:

The proper administration of government in the city is committed to the Mayor and his appointees in charge of the Police Department, and it is unfortunate that some plain common sense is not used in handling this Sunday question.

It is proper to say that in this present case of Luna Park, when an ex parte preliminary injunction was refused, the matter was brought to the personal attention of the Mayor, who at once instructed the police authorities to refrain from closing the plaintiff's park until this motion was argued and decided.

If the Court must interfere in this matter I think the plaintiff makes out a case for a preliminary injunction pending a trial of the issues under elementary equitable rules. The injury caused by the injunction is trivial, the injury caused by refusing it, if it is heretofore decided that the Mayor is wrong in his position, is incalculable and irreparable. These are all familiar equitable rules compelling the issuance of preliminary injunctions pending a trial of the issues.

I do not decide on this preliminary hearing that the exhibitions in Luna Park are not common shows and subject to license. I do not decide that the Mayor has not the power to limit licenses to six days. I do not decide that the opening and operating of Luna Park on Sunday is legal. These matters should be deliberately tried and determined by a judgment of the Court.

The motion is therefore granted upon condition that plaintiff stipulates to move this case for trial at the October special term and to be then ready to try it. The order must also provide that it shall in no way interfere with the police in their regular duty of supervision and inspection of the premises or prevent their making arrests if the law be violated in any other respect than the alleged violation by reason of the absence of a seven day license.

There was general rejoicing at the island over Frederic Thompson's victory and the showmen will cease worrying over the scope of their six day licenses for the remainder of the season.

PREACHER HANDY WITH FISTS.

Knocks Down Man Whose Wife He Was Helping to Get a Divorce.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—The Rev. Arthur C. McHenry of Chicago, called here to testify in the divorce case of Mrs. Lulu Thompson against Archibald Thompson, real estate dealer, to-day failed to get to the stand, but he did punch Thompson in the eye, felling him to the floor of the American Trust Building, and later found himself under arrest charged by Thompson with performing a marriage illegally.

Justice of the Peace William Brown ruled against the argument of the Rev. Mr. McHenry's attorney that his client could not be arrested while here as a witness, but paroled the prisoner in custody of the Rev. Dan E. Bradley of Pilgrim Congregational Church on Dr. Bradley's promise to produce him in court to-morrow.

Thompson meantime lost his wife and $800 in alimony. Judge Willis Vickery, in Common Pleas Court, granting a decree of divorce, which was not contested. Cruelty was alleged. Thompson declares the pastor wrecked his home. This he stoutly denies. Mr. McHenry has a wife and three children in Chicago.

Thompson called me out when I met him to-day," explained Mr. McHenry. "What could I do but knock him down? This is the second time I've trimmed him."

Witnesses of the fight say the pastor had the better of it.

Thompson's side of the affair reads this in his words: "Maybe I did hit him a name. What else could I do? He hit first and I tried to hit back. If they hadn't stopped me I would have given him what was coming to him."

Rev. Mr. McHenry was pastor of the Thompsons' church, Highland Congregational, in 1907. He fought in the Spanish-American War in the Nineteenth Volunteer Infantry.

"My relations with Mrs. Thompson were merely those of a friend," explained Mr. McHenry after the hearing to-day.

The pastor accused his wife of illegally performing the ceremony that made two members of Highland church man and wife, Walter D. Lawrence and Lillian Rutledge. Mr. McHenry declared he did not know it if he was not fully qualified to perform the wedding ceremony.

ONE TIN PLANT WORKING.

American Company Concentrating Its Efforts at Elwood, Ind.

ELWOOD, Ind., July 1.—The Elwood plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company is the only plant of the company now in operation. All the men here went out last night, but this morning enough returned to operate two hot mills. These two mills require about one hundred men, who accepted employment under the "open shop" rule of the company. The seven hundred men who are still idle, but it is expected that many of them will return to work.

The officers of the company are concentrating their efforts to operate the plant here and supply the trade.

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—Not one of the fifteen tin plate plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company which have been working under a union scale, was at work to-day. About 7,000 men are out. The tieup was surprising since it was said that the company had agreed that they would be able to fill the mills with independent workmen in an hour.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 1.—The Wheeling Tin Plate Company and the Follenshoe Company, local tin making concerns, to-day signed the union scale of tin workers and 1,700 men, members of the union, who are employed at these mills are at work.

All is quiet at the local plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company and there has been no disorder. No effort has been made to operate the plants.

The Fourth Begins Claiming Its Own.

George Frazer, 10 years old, of 323 East Seventy-ninth street, got ready early this year for the Fourth of July by obtaining a caltrops revolver. When he was undressing last night the weapon fell from his pocket and was discharged. A bullet struck George over the right eye. He was taken to the Presbyterian hospital where the doctors think the wound will not prove serious.

MURDERED BY JOY RIDERS?

CABMAN PERHAPS SLAIN FOR REFUSING FINE.

Suspected Persons Said to Be Youngsters of Prominent Families in Dobbs Ferry—Detectives Say They Know Them—Arrests Likely to Be Made Soon.

TARRYTOWN, July 1.—Edward Sellar died in the Dobbs Ferry Hospital on Monday night. He was a cab driver for John A. Best. He left the lively station at 9 o'clock on Sunday night in answer to a telephone message to call for a passenger who had arrived at the depot on the 8:45 train. Ten minutes later Sellar was found in the sandy road near the station with a compound fracture of the skull and his body black and blue from kicks. The body was taken to the Dobbs Ferry Hospital. The doctor in charge said that Sellar, who was subject to fits, had been taken ill while driving to the station and had fallen out and fractured his skull.

John A. Best, Sellar's employer, went to the hospital and examined Sellar's body. The head was cut from the forehead back to the neck. There was a lump on the forehead and there was a hole in Sellar's neck near the ear into which one could put two fingers. Sellar's side was black and blue from bruises. Best believed that Sellar had been murdered.

"This is the work of certain young men who want joy rides," Best said. "I have held up men two or three times before, but they never tackled my men. I'm not afraid of them and I will see that they are punished."

Best engaged three detectives and on the evidence they secured he called in Coroner Squire. The Coroner went to Dobbs Ferry yesterday afternoon and after a talk with Best he engaged State Detective O. E. Canning to work on the case. Canning this afternoon said:

"Sellar was murdered. His murder was not premeditated. I believe that on his way to the depot he was stopped by three or four young men. I will not mention their names but they came from well known families in Dobbs Ferry. They demanded that Sellar give them a 'joy ride.' Sellar refused, saying that he was going for a customer. They began drinking a little and they were easily angered. They dragged Sellar from his seat and beat him over the head with a coupling pin and as he lay unconscious on the ground they kicked him. They did not mean to kill him and the next time Sellar would resist their wishes. These young men are still in Dobbs Ferry. They have influence, but two of them are very nervous to-day. My men are watching every move they make and they cannot go away. I expect that the Coroner will order arrests on the evidence I have."

Canning would not mention any names, but he intimated that the suspected men were of prominent families in town. That Sellar was murdered the detectives have established beyond doubt. The derby that he wore has not yet been found. The cushion seat on which he sat and the carpet under his feet were found on the ground near the body, showing that they were dragged out with him. The whip was found several feet away.

Shortly after the murder the young men attempted to steal a launch owned by Arthur Graney. They broke into the engine room, but before they could get started they were frightened away. Best says that he knows the man who patrolled up and down the road while his friends were "trimming" Sellar. Sellar was about 30 years old. He was single and was of good disposition. On Tuesday night fifteen minutes before he called to the depot he was driving Mrs. Best to her home.

BRIDEGROOM'S SUICIDE.

Farmer Found Hanging in His Garret After Quarrel With His Wife.

MINNEOLA, July 1.—Alfred Burt, 35 years of age, who was married less than a month ago, committed suicide by hanging on Tuesday night. The victim was the garret of his home. He was a wealthy farmer and lived on the outskirts of this place. His farm is said to be valued at close to $100,000.

On June 9 last Burt married a Miss Albrecht of Elmont. She told Sheriff Foster to-day that her married life was not quite what she expected it would be. On Sunday night, she said, she asked her husband for some money to buy furniture for the house, but he refused, saying the furniture in the house was good enough. They quarrelled and she went to her mother's home. Last night she returned here, but found the house locked, and when she returned again this morning and could still get no response to her knock she became alarmed and asked the sheriff to make an investigation. Constable Buehler was sent to the house and after questioning her neighbors and learning that Burt had not been seen for a day or two, Buehler broke down the door. With Mrs. Burt he searched all the rooms and Burt, but it was not until they reached the attic that they found him. One end of a rope was knotted to a rafter and the other end tied about his neck. Close by was a box which Burt had evidently used to stand upon. When he was found his feet were only about two inches from the floor.

Acting Coroner Weeks said the man had evidently been hanging all day yesterday.
